Slack wax is a complex mixture of high molecular weight hydrocarbons, primarily paraffin and microcrystalline waxes, along with varying amounts of oil. It is produced during the refining of lubricating oils, particularly from the dewaxing process of base oils. The composition and properties of slack wax can vary significantly depending on the source and refining process.

By choosing a reliable supplier like Peak Universal Business, you can ensure the consistent quality and performance of slack wax, driving the success of your rubber products in the competitive market.
